Reliable Sprinkler Announces Department Name Change from Technical Services to Product Technology

[Liberty, South Carolina, August 2025]

The Reliable Automatic Sprinkler Co. Inc. today announced that its Technical Services Group will now be known as Product Technology. The new name better reflects the team's role in advancing product innovation, technical expertise, and customer support across Reliable's fire protection solutions.

The Product Technology team brings together specialists with deep knowledge of fire sprinkler systems, codes, and applications. Their mission remains the same: to provide customers, engineers, and contractors with industry-leading technical guidance, product resources, and design support.

"The Technical Services group has always focused on more than just technical support—they are embedded in the development, testing, and application of new products," noted Chief Operating Officer Steve Wolin. "The name Product Technology captures the scope of what they do today and where we're headed in the future."

Reliable is committed to ensuring a smooth transition with this update. Customers will continue to work with the same team of experts whose bios can be found on the company's website.
